What you will need.

- Paypal account (verified highly recommended)
- Ebay account (+rep always good)
- At least $20 startup money (can be done without but highly recommended)

Getting Started

Assuming you already have your paypal and ebay account setup we can now get started.

It is preferred that you have positive sellers rep, this will attract more buyers and make it easier for you to sell more.

If you do not have positive rep this can be obtained easily by buying cheap items for chinese sellers. Basically buying $1 items, make sure you pay right away and most of the time they will +rep you instantly.

Having sellers rep is a big part in this too, the more you have the more ebay will let you sell at a time. They also start you off with a $5,000 monthly limit which is usually reached very fast. The more you sell the without having any problems with the buyer the more they will let you sell per month. After a while they will remove all of your limits. Depending on how good of a seller you are.

Lets start listing!

When you are able to succesfully start listing your going to want to visit this website <http://www.codestore.eu> or www.Cheapkey4u.com I would reccomend starting off selling things like Windows 8 Pro. These sell EXTREMELY fast, the only downside is its not much of a profit. I would recommend you put it as a fixed listing between $35-55. The lower you list for the faster it will sell, but the lower your profit will be. Make sure you don't list too many of these or ebay will get mad and remove them. You can also get suspended too which will not be good.

In your description you should say something like this.

“This listing is for one copy of windows 8 pro, this is a download link and activation key only.”

You may add anything else you like but make sure you get your point though about this being a activation key only and that they will not be receiving a retail box in the mail.

You can list more than just windows products but its recommended you wait until you have a higher rep before you start listing $100+ products.

MORE!!

There is more to listing than just software keys, Game keys is where its at! www.gamekeysbuy.com offers great low prices on the hottest games available. Simply go back a step but instead of listing windows products pick out a popular game preferably 50% or more off, the better the discount the more profit! Try listing them a little lower than they normally cost to attract more buyers!

You sold your first item!

Most likely you will sell your first item in under 24 hours. You will receive an email from ebay when this happens. If you have purchased your codes before listing which is recommended you can simply contact your buyer via personal email or through ebay with a download link to the software (which is provided to you when you purchase on website) and his activation key. Hoping that everything goes well they will reward you with positive rep, which is much needed.

Lather, rinse, repeat.

You have sold your first few items!

Congratulations. After time goes by you can move on to better items, such as adobe products. Come up with a profitable price to list them at, its basically just like listing anything else.

Pretty much wrap things up.

Have fun with your new ebay selling method!
